20th - 21st October 2026
Bali, Indonesia

Hybrid (In- person and Online)

Welcome to 8th International Conference on Public Health and Well-being

The 8th International Conference on Public Health and Well-Being will be held on 20th – 21st October 2026 in Bali, Indonesia. This prestigious annual conference brings together public health professionals, researchers, academics, practitioners, and policymakers from around the world to connect, collaborate, and exchange knowledge on current and emerging public health issues.

The conference serves as an international platform for presenting innovative research, discussing contemporary challenges in public health and well-being, and exploring practical solutions that contribute to building healthier communities globally. It also provides valuable opportunities for networking, interdisciplinary collaboration, and professional development.

The programme will feature keynote speeches by renowned experts, technical sessions, panel discussions, and interactive knowledge-sharing opportunities designed to promote learning, innovation, and global engagement. Participants can expect an enriching and insightful experience that encourages meaningful dialogue, research dissemination, and international partnerships.

Whether you join us in- person or online, we welcome you to be part of this inspiring and transformative public health experience.

We look forward to welcoming you to Bali, Indonesia!

Call for Papers

Conference Theme: “Public Health in a Turbulent World: Building Resilient Health Systems.”

Public health and well-being are essential foundations for the sustainable development and prosperity of individuals, communities, and societies worldwide. Public health focuses on preventing disease, promoting healthy lifestyles, and improving access to quality healthcare, while well-being extends beyond physical health to include mental, emotional, and social wellness that together shape overall quality of life.

In an era marked by global health crises, climate change, emerging diseases, and socio-economic disruptions, strengthening resilient and adaptive health systems has become more critical than ever. This conference aims to provide a dynamic platform for knowledge sharing, interdisciplinary dialogue, and collaborative solutions to address contemporary public health challenges.

We are pleased to invite researchers, practitioners, policymakers, and students to submit their original work for present at the 8th International Conference on Public Health and Well-Being 2026, to be held on 20th – 21st October 2026 in Bali, Indonesia.
